

Dear Canva

I have learnt that Canva are teaming with Sam Altman to create bogus workers. This has resulted in extreme emotional distress for myself and my family. I find this practice to be unconscionable. If someone were to be involved in such an experiment, they should be informed, and they should have given consent.

I have found in my home a surveillance device, which I understand has been placed here on behalf of Canva. See the photo of myself holding said surveillance device, taken on 2024-01-28, below.

I will from here on in not further communicate with Canva. I am taking my knowledge to any court willing to take the case, and as evidence I am holding on to the surveillance device, and to a work laptop handed to me by Canva, containing numerous communications which are evidence for the accusation which I am making.

Kind regards

Santoso
